Students lend a helping hand for people affected by flood

Students of St Aloysius Convent ISC School, Palluruthy, stepped up to do their part in helping the ongoing relief process to the people affected by the flood-hit areas. The school had also extended help during the cyclone Ockhi last year. This year students and teachers had packed and labelled the collected items which included 350 kg of rice, 300 kg of various pulses, bed sheets, soaps, bath towels and lungies to be distributed to the people. They were personally delivered by the school authorities, teachers and students to the organisation overseeing the relief work at Chellanam.
